..... and then in the "open" box, type the name of your CD drive (in the above case it's "E:") followed by setup. The setup program will ask where to install the destination of the files and will default to the intriguingly odd "C:\Program Files\Theuberger Verlag GmbH\SPRAT on CD". If you don't go in for weird folder names, you can press the "browse" button and define another. In the example below "d:\data\sprat" was chosen.

and then double click on the "AcroRd32.ex	xe icon. 📲 (c)Adobe.txt 🔊 Cooltype.dli

Finally, you need to click the button that says you agree to grass up anyone you know who pirates the CD.

So what if you've got to this point and found your copy of Adobe reader doesn't work or you haven't installed it yet. Well you get a second chance if you select from 🔀 sprat the "Programs" menu, then ...

.... just to the right of "SPRAT", there is an Acrobat Reader button..

But! You haven't got a copy of Adobe Reader and you are now wondering why those nice people at FunkAmateur didn't put it on the CD. Fear not, you can download a copy from www.adobe.com or perhaps a better idea is to buy a copy of PC Pro from your newsagent which almost always has a copy of Adobe on it's cover CD.

If it still doesn't work, then please remember that the GQRP club has no financial interest in the SPRAT CD and any defects should be reported to FunkAmateur who's contact details are on the CD's jewel case.
